JUSTICES STUDY BILLINGS TESTIMONY

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

With the announcement yesterday morning that another new industry will locate here, residents of the city are quite eager to learn the nature of the new plant.

* * * *

With the announcement, the prediction of business leaders city officials and newspapers that Richmond has entered a new era and has taken another forward step, is being realized.

* * * *

Since the announcement of the awarding of the Ford contract, Richmond has taken on an added air of prosperity.

* * * *

Everything is being done here to aid local men.

* * * *

At the Ford plant Richmond men will be given preference.

* * * *

Richmond contractors will assist in the Ford work.

* * * *

At the Filice and Perrelli cannery, Richmond men are being employed.

* * * *

Every indication points to a greater year for the city of Richmond.

* * * *

One of the briefest, and the most concise descriptions of a certain Richmond man was uttered last night.

* * * *

"He tries to be a good Joe."

* * * *

In those seven, brief words, the entire character of the man was summed up.

* * * *

Often wonder how many people read these pamphlets that are distributed by the county and state prior to an election.

* * * *

Some of this material—which everyone should read—is scattered to the four winds.

* * * *

It is everyone's duty to vote.

* * * *

And it's everyone's duty to know why he is voting—and for whom.

* * * *

Too many of our "staunch" citizens enter an election booth, get their ballots, and then stamp an "X" after the name of the first man in each list.

* * * *

And this same person who does this is probably one of the best viewers with alarm and pointers with dismay in the county, when governmental affairs are mentioned.

* * * *

Know who you're voting for this election—and vote.

R.R. PLANS BIG PROJECT

Predictions of Richmond business and civic leaders that Richmond is entering a new era of prosperity are being realized.

A short time ago the contracts for the Ford plant were awarded.

Yesterday announcement was made by the Santa Fe railroad of plans for the development of a $2,000,000 industrial terminal here by the railroad.

To Locate Here

The terminal, it was reported, will probably be located on 162 acres of land now owned by the company, and which is now being filled in as a deep water shipping channel is being dredged.

As reported in the RECORD-HERALD yesterday morning, a new factory is also to be located here—a plant that will cover 50 acres of land and will employ 600 men.

It was also reported that several other industrial deals are under way here and that more than one major industry will locate here.

Plans Told

W. B. Storey, president of the Santa Fe who announced the development of the terminal here, stated that the Santa Fe will participate in the proposed interconnecting plan by which the line and the Western Pacific will be connected by a new line to be built by the Key System.

The Key System has applied for a permit to construct tracks on Poplar street, from Twelfth to Third streets in Oakland. This will facilitate the change of traffic between the Santa Fe and Western Pacific.

According to information received at the Twelfth Naval district headquarters in San Francisco Gustafson was on duty alone in the compass room when the fire broke out, and the four other men at the station were unaware of the fire or his injury until aroused by his screams.

The men immediately rushed to the compass room, extinguished the fire and began calling for aid from the mainland.

The call for the ship was the first word to the mainland of the accident.

Due to all the ships being engaged in the mimic warfore some delay was encountered in dispatching the ship to the island.

Time Fliers On Long Flight 25 Days; To Keep On

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15.—UP—Determined to 'prevent all future endurance flights," by setting such a record that nobody can hope to exceed it, Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brine in their airplane "Greater St. Louis," circled on over this airport tonight with more than 25 days of continuous flying behind them.

Streaks of grime and grease on the fuselage of the once brilliant orange and yellow monoplane, and a slightly increased use of fuel, were the only signs of wear after the 609 hours aloft, ending at 4:11 p. m. CST.

The fliers set 1000 hours as their goal, which would keep them in the air another 12 days, and that mark seemed more than wild hope tonight.

O'Brine and Jackson continued to send word that they were well and their motor behaving "perfect."

Billings imprisoned at Folsom on conviction of implication in the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing has accused state Senator Edgar Hurley of Oakland off hiring him as a "labor spy" and for the purpose of carrying dynamite.

Hurley had made no formal statement tonight regarding Billings story which was told the justices as they gathered at the prison Thursday night.

The justices are all in favor of ending the prolonged hearing as soon as possible, Chief Justice Waste said.

Other matters coming up before the court are demanding the attention of the justices, Waste pointed out.

Billings received a sentence in prison for carrying a suitcase of dynamite from San Francisco to Sacramento in 1913. It was Hurley, according to Billings who engaged him for the work.

John F. Wilson, of Alameda, former electrical workers' official, was also mentioned in the testimony of Billings regarding the transportation of the dynamite laden suitcase.

The match will bring together two of the hardest hitters in the heavyweight division today and, as the fight fans love the boy with the punch they shou'd be a satisfied lot when they leave the arena, for here is one match that is almost a certainty to be over long before the tenth round has been reached.

There is one fight that they may be judged on. It was the one with Les Kennedy of Los Angeles, who scored a ten-round decision win over Baer and was stopped by Campbell in the third round. Despite this, Baer will open the favorite and be the choice as they step between the ropes for their ten-round contest.

POP WARNER LOSES STAR PLAYERS

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Aug. 15.—Having lost eleven lettermen, eight of whom were regulars last year, "Pop" Warner will lose no time when his 1930 Stanford football aspirants report to him here September 15, for just five days after the first practice session—Saturday, September 20—the Cardinal aggregation meets West Coast Army in its opening game.

From that date until November 29, when Stanford meets Dartmouth college in an important intersectional contest here, Warner's men have a game each week, including one with the University of Minnesota at Minneapo'is October 11. Upon returning from the midwest, the Redshirts tackle four successive conference opponents—Oregon State, Southern California, U. C. L. A. and Washington—follow up with Caltech and then take on the University of California. The schedule is rounded out with games against the Olympic Club and Santa Clara in the second and third weeks, following the West Coast Army tussle.

Warner's lost lettermen have already caused him plenty of worry and it is probable that the Stanford coach will do no sma'l amount of experimenting before he strikes a combination which will function satisfactorily. Following are the lettermen who are no longer eligible: Regulars—Captain Muller and Preston, ends; Thompson, tackle; Drisco'l, guard; Frentrup, halfback; Fleishhacker, quarterback; Smal'ing, fullback; Heinecke, center; substitutes—Klabau, tackle; Wilson, guard; Crary, quarterback.

To offset these losses, "Pop" will have seventeen lettermen, only three of whom were regulars in 1929 as follows: Rgulars—Captain-elect Ray Tandy, tackle; Bill Bardin, guard; Harlow Rothert, halfback; substitutes—Carl Wittenau and P. Neill, ends; Dick Bogue and Corwin Artman, tackles; Ray Dawson and Pete Heiser, guards; Perry Taylor and Marcellus Albertson, centers; Harry Hillman, quarterback, Bill Simkins, fullback; Phil Winnek, Guido Caglieri, Phil Moffatt and Bill Clark, halfbacks.

Neill is practically a cinch to hold down one end position as he was used a great deal last season when Preston was hurt, and gave promise of developing into a truly great wingman. In spring practice, Bill Doub, goof tackle of last season showed best at the other end and has a fine chance to grab this job. However, Wittenau, Don Colvin from the goofs, Bush and Kendall Albertson of the varsity subs, and Don Tyler of basketball fame are all very good possibilities.

Captain Ray Tandy will, of course, be a fixture at one tackle post and what a fixture. Although accorded little recognition last year, Tandy was one of the most efficient linemen on the coast, and should have a great season this fall. Artman, whom Thompson beat out for a regular post in late season, may win the other tackle job, although Bogue is conceded an even chance for it, and Chuck Ehrhorn, a non-letterman sub may surprise both of them. George Grey and "Red" Hand are excellent prospects from the goofs. Grey will doubtless be used quite frequently as he is the best place kicker to appear on the Farm since the days of Murray Cuddeback.

Bill Bardin, Pete Heiser and Ray Dawson each was used a great deal at the guard positions and should grab the regular jobs this year, with Bard'n and Heiser as slight favorites. The freshmen are sending up four likely prospects—Fred Scribner, Ted Kite, Bill Corbus, and Joseph Ross, while Ebey, Miller Brooks and Hunt from the goofs may cut some figure.

Perry Taylor and Mar Albertson, who took turns at relieving Walt Heinicke at center last season, will fight it out for the regular pivot job., Bill Marks shifted from the backfield Card and Bates from the frosh, and Quirk from the goofs are at least average center candidates.

With the great "powerhouse" combination of Smalling and Fleishhacker gone from the backfie'd, Coach Warner will have a tough time duplicating the punch his eleven displayed last year. The quarterback and fullback positions are more or less interchangeable and several men will doubtless be tried at these posts. Harry Hillman, who substituted for Fleishhacker is the outstanding candidate for quarterback Targhetta from the frosh and Baker from the goofs mgiht come along fast enough to be of some assistance If Bill Simkins has complete'y recovered from the knee injury which kept him out practically all last year he should have the best chance for the fullback job Harlow Rothert can be used to good advantage at either full or right half and "Dusty" Allen who was not used last season looks like a comer.

Phil Moffatt will take over Lud Frentrup's left halfback post and should be about the best back on the coast. Bi'l Clark and Rudy Rintala will be capable substitutes, while "Spud" Hardy, a diminutive youngster from the goofs is a possibility. If Rothert is used at full, Caglieri will doubtless take over the right halfback post. Caglieri is one of the hardest hitters on the squad and is big enough to stand the hard going. Phil Winnek and Bill Laird, varsity subs last season, and Tom Lambert from the goofs will lend Caglieri plenty of assistance.

Large Bribes Are Laid To Dry Agents

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 15.—UP—Large bribes were paid to federal prohibition agents, to permit entrance of liquor shipments when Roy Olmstead was liquor king of the Pacific Northwest in 1294 and 1925, it was testified at the trial of five men accused of conspiracy.

Alfred M. Hubbard, government key witness, said that he gave Olmstead money William Whitney, attorney for Roy Lyle, former prohibition administrator, so that Lyle might make contributions to the W. C. T. U. and the Anti-Saloon league.

Acting as agent for both the rum ring and government men, Hubbard delivered about $600 monthly to Whitney for 10 or 12 months before making a direct payment to Lyle, he declared.

Hubbard's testimony was given at the trial of Lyle, Whitney, Earl Corwin, Richard Fryant and Clifford McKinney.

Hubbard said that thousands of boatloads of contraband liquor reached Seattle under the protection of the former prohibition officials. Hubbard notifying Whitney of the boats 'schedules so that enforcement operatives could be tipped to refrain from molesting an Olmstead shipment.

Olmstead told Hubbard to pay Corwin, former prohibition field agent at the rate of $700 to $1000 a month, he said. Hubbard's testimony was expected to require two or three days.

BEBE DANIELS IN CROOK FILM

A thrill awaits you at the Fox-California theater. This reviewer was pleasurably surprised and fascinated by that meteoric screen personality, Bebe Daniels, when he enacted her stirring role in "Rio Rita." Now this superlative songbird of the vocal screen shows her talents in another direction—as an eminently capable and distinguished dramatic actress in "Alais French Gertie" her third starring production for Radio Pictures.

This talented young lady, who not many years ago was racing through comedy high jinks on the silent screen shows herself to be a performer of rare power and cleverness. She plays with facility and builds her scenes to strong climazes.

"Alias French Gertie" is a dramatic inside picture of the society "racket" as practiced by smmoth working "French" maids and their male accomplices. The man in the story is well played by Ben Lyon who makes his first screen appearance opposite Miss Daniels in this film.

The talkie describes the adventures of Gertie, always scheming and planning successful coups on the rich with the aid of her accomplice; then suddenly realizing after he is caught and sentenced to a year in jail, that the price is too high for the rewards. She realizes her love for Jimmy Hartigan, now languishing in jail, but when he is released she continues the racket because of his insistence. Eventually she prevails on him to quit, but he attempts one last job in defiance of her entreaties, which almost proved the undoing of both of them.

A well-cast talkie this, produced under the capable direction of G. Archinbaud, and distinguished by supporting players of excellence. Among those who appear are Robert Emmett O'Connor, Betty Pierce, John Ince and Daisy Belmore.

Its greatest feature is the triumph of Bebe Daniels as a noteworthy actress wel' capable of giving as fine a dramatic performance as the talkies may ask.

Also on the program is a Mickey Mouse and talking comedy.

Mr. And Mrs.

BEBE DANIELS and her husband, Ben Lyons are starred in "Alias French Gertie," which is now at the Fox-California theater.

BRITISH ZEP BATTLES RAIN

ABOARD THE R-100 AT SEA Aug. 15.—The R-100 helped by a favoring wind ,touched a speed of 100 miles an hour for a while over the rolling Atlantic today as the great British dirigible hurried toward its home port at Cardington, Eng., on the return flight from Montreal.

The rushing air liner made this speed in the late forenoon, when a fresh wind sprang up, following a stormy night in mid-Atlantic.

The passengers arose to find they had slept through a dramatic night as the airship battled heavy winds and rain. The speed was reduced to 15 miles an hour, but the R-100 weathered the storm steadily.

The marvelous thing to the passengers was that during the storm there was no indication of the raging elements around us.

Our first indication of the intensity of the struggle was at breakfast time when no hot drinks were served. The rain had driven thru the fabric ,drenching the kitchen and putting the electric stove out of commission.

Jazz music aboard the R-100 helped to while away the hours.

The lashing of the rain, which fell in sheets, was a constant swish at the sloping windows of the great air liner, as it bored through dark skies.

Favorable winds were reported ahead but there was a possibility we would reach the Irish coast before morning, and Cardington early Saturday.

The heavy rains began last night and the thick sheets blocked the huge bulk of the R-100's envelope as the dirigible sailed along over and through water. There was no let-up as dawn broke and we passed the half-way mark on the trans-Atlantic journey to England. Rain fell steadily through the day.

YOUNG SLAYER DIES ON GALLOWS

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Aug. 15.—UP—The two death cells in San Quentin were vacant today, but the two men who had occupied them last night had left by different doors. One, George Ryley, had gone exultingly back to "condemned row," assured of at least a few more days of life, while the other, John Gomez, passed thru the little grey door to the gallows room, from which no return is possible.

Gomez, older of the two although but in his twenty-second year, was hanged at 10:20 o'clock this morning ,for his share in the brutal robbery and murder of George "Dad" Jones, Livermore cab man.

Ryley, 21, was taken from the death cell last night, after his attorneys had succeeded in obtaining a stay of execution until Sept. 8, and later had been granted a writ of habeas corpus ,based on a plea that his conviction had been unconstitutional.

Robbery, Slaying

The two men were convicted and sentenced to die in August, 1929, for murdering George Jones and robbing him of $23, after luring him to a lonely spot on the outskirts of Livermore.

Their first appeals were refused and they were taken to San Quentin to await execution.

Last night Ryley received word that he was not to die and he was almost insane with joy.

Insane With Joy

"Good old writ. Writ saved me. Good old writ. I knew it would come. I knew I'd beat the rap. They won't hang me," he shouted as he was led from the death cell back to condemned row to await his court hearing which offered further hope of definite escape from the rope.

His companion, Gomez, knew however ,that there was no hope for himself.

Gomez awoke early today and sent for Father William Fleming, the prison chaplain. He took the last sacrament of the Catholic church before breakfast. After a hearty meal of hot cakes, ham and eggs and coffee, Gomez amused himself by playing popular airs on the squeaky phonograph that has cheered the last dread hours of many a condemned man.

Witnesses Gather

Meanwhile, some seventy-five or more witnesses ,including guards, newspapermen, friends of the murdered man, and police officers were gathered in the bleak, whitewashed room adjacent to the death cells.

In the center of the room was the gallows, with the 13 steps leading up to it, and the little wooden partition behind which stand the guards who cut the ropes that drop the trap.

Gomez entered, supported by two guards ,while a third guard walked behind. Ahead of him stalked Father Fleming, Warden Holihan and U. A. Smith, superintendent of prison road camps.

Wore Smile

The man about to die wore a dazed smile on his face and walked unsteadily. The party mounted the steps, the warden raised his arm. It was over quickly.

Thirteen minutes later Dr. Kenneth Hawkins, assistant prison physician pronounced that the sentence of the law had been duly carried out.

Gomez will be buried in the prison cemetery.

Before the execution ,in his last few minutes of life, Gomez learned that Willard Shea ,public defender of Alameda county, was making furious efforts to secure a stay of execution ,but it was too late.

Gomez told Warden Holihan that he bore no grudges against anyone and that he hoped Ryley would have the "best of luck."

Saw Hanging

His last request was that his insurance policy might be transferred to his mother's name.

One witness of the execution stood silent and apart from the others. He was Elmer Jones, son of the man for whose murder Gomez was paying with his own life.

"Its a cruel thing to do," said Jones, after the execution, "but he had no mercy on my dad."

GOODYEAR CO. BUILDS SMALL AIR SHIPS

"The Goodyear Zeppelin corporation of Akron Ohio which operates a fleet of six small airships and has built more than one hundred for the army and navy" says A. Kastelic, Goodyear dealer at Twenty-third street and Nevin avenue "has just delivered to A. G. Wadsworth, head of the New England Airship corporation, an airship to be used for commercial purposes in the New England area."

Two pilots who have been connected with the Goodyear fleet for some time, flew the ship from Akron to New Bedford, and will remain with the ship for an indefinite period.

The craft made a quick flight, leaving Akron at midnight, arriving at Newark, N. J. at eight o'clock in the morning.

At Newark a number of flights were made to carry friends of Wadsworth and then proceeded to New Bedford, arriving about three o'clock in the afternoon.

The ship, which has been named the Neponset ,will be based at the Round Hill hangar which is owned by Col. E. H. R. Green.

The two pilots in charge of the ship are S. H. Sheppard and Walter Massic. Both of these men worked in the New England territory last summer with the Mayflower, another Goodyear ship, which cooperated with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in radio and meteorological experiments.

The Neponset is about 128 feet long, 37 feet in diameter and has a gas capacity of 83.000 cubic feet.

WATER TAX TO BE OUT THIS YEAR

OAKLAND, Aug. 15.—A reduction in tax rate for water was announced today by the directors of the East Bay Municipal Utility District. Where the rate was 50 cents last year, it will be forty-two cents this year, according to the budget fixed by the directors at today's meeting.

"It is our desire," said Dr. George C. Pardee, president of the Utility district, "to keep the tax rate for water at the lowest possible point, and we are happy to be able to announce an eight cent, or a sixteen and two-thirds percent, reduction for this year. This has been made possible by the efficient administration of the Utility District affairs and by cutting expenses to the bone without sacrificing service to the public. This reduction means we have turned the corner in our district finances and further reductions can be looked forward to from year to year, until within a very few years, all the expenses of the district can be met out of water rates, which will also be later reduced."

Dr. Pardee pointed out that while it has been necessary to levy district taxes, the Utility district has done an efficient piece of work in bringing in ,two years ahead of schedule, an adequate supply of first class water, putting an end permanently to the menace of a water shortage which has hung over these cities for the past fifty years.

He said that the mountain storage reservoir now holds several years supply and that more water is being brought down every day through the Mokelumne pipe line that is being used at the peak of the consumption season.

Screen Star In Suicide Try Faces Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 15.—UP—Lina Basquette, dancer and screen star, whose attempted suicide because her baby had been kept from her was described by attorneys as an "unnecessary gesture," today faced the prospect of a divorce suit brought by her husband.

Miss Basquette may see her little daughter, Lita Basquette Warner, any time she wishes, it was declared today by counsel for Harry M. Warner of Warner Brothers productions.

Miss Basquette conferred with her own attorney, Ivan Hiler, regarding legal action to regain custody of the child, but he informed her there were no grounds for such a step.

Meanwhile it was reported that Miss Basquette's second husband, Peverell Marley, cameraman for Cecil DeMille, was preparing to file suit for divorce today or Monday, alleging mental cruelty.

DROUGHT AID PROGRAM TO BE SPEEDED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—UP—Plans for speeding up expenditure of federal road aid funds to provide employment for drought-stricken farmers were announced by federal officials today as leaders of the three national farm organizations pledged President Hoover their complete cooperation with his relief program.

Meanwhile governors who attended the drought relief conference at the White House yesterday were hurrying home to place the program in operation in their states. The relief organization is expected to be completed within 10 days.

Cooperation of the farm organization was promised to the president late today by L. J. Taber, of the national Grange; Sam H. Thompson, of the American Farm Bureau Federation and C. C. Talbert, of the Farmers' Union.

They expressed hearty approval of the relief plan formulated by the president and approved by the governors.

Several of the governors called at the White House for further discussion of the plan today. There was no public criticism of the program, but several of the governors privately expressed disappointment that there was no specific plan for advancing federal funds in the emergency.

COMPANIONED

You meant to go the weary way alone
Deep in life's wilderness to fight,
Unaided, all the ghosts that moan
Through tired fancy in the long, dark night.

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

With outward calm and courage almost gay
You took your solitary flight:
With what a tender, brooding heart
You sought to hide your suffering from sight.

Think you, you journey all alone
To plumb the depths of weariness and pain?
(O blind, but brave, dear love!)
Two hearts so tenderly at one
That seek a separate peace shall seek in vain.

NINA DUMAS.

Don't Be a "Yes Woman"

ONE of the infrequently advertised advantages of being a housewife is the chance to be a "No Woman"—the chance to say what you think to a man instead of flattering him hypocritically. After all, the housewife comes about as close as any member of her sex to having a life tenure on her job. Some of us may not be crazy about the job itself, may consider it ill-paid and badly organized. But a housewife at least does not have to admire audibly the boss's intellect and integrity, his neckties and golf socks, when she secretly considers him a narrow-minded, none-too-honest individual with a terrible taste in toggery.

Many a business girl at least imagines that she must thus play the sedulous sycophant, on pain of being fired. Much has been written about the ignominy of being a "yes man." It seems time to express a fervent hope that the ever-growing throng of women in business are not going to follow this egregious example and turn into "yes women." While expressing the hope, we shall also utter a warning—because it is fatally easy for the women subordinates in an office to deny themselves what Stuart Chase, writing in the current Harper's, celebrates as "The Luxury of Integrity."

THE business girl is tempted to be a "yes woman" because, in the first place, she is even more afraid than her male co-worker of losing her job. Her economic position is still on the whole more precarious than his; she is still—or still feels herself—on trial in many organizations. Like Agag, she walks delicately, trying not to displease anybody.

So-And-So, she has been told, is "close to the boss"; better smile and say something admiring when he expounds his new idea for handling the files, even though she knows it will make more work for everybody concerned.

Such-And-Such is the nephew of a director, better make no protest, even when his bullying injustice reduces to tears or sulks every girl who takes his dictation.

As for the boss himself, why jeopardize her business existence by giving him anything except agreement amicable to the point of fulsomeness?

Part of the "yessing" of the business woman is due to job-fear, but part is to be traced to the early nurtured if not inborn tendency of her sex to please. Many little girls are taught from the cradle that their first law of good behavior is to be amiable, charming, docile, pleasing. In them rugged independence, sterling individuality, are infrequently encouraged.

Finally, a woman has to have more courage than a man to disagree with her superiors, to offer—even when asked for "frankness"—criticism instead of compliment, because most men are more irritated by an attractive girl's criticism than by that coming from another man. The element of sex intensifies the offense of disagreement. As Rebecca West points out in "Harriet Hume," a man feels that unpleasant truths should be uttered only by maiden aunts with thick ankles.

THE housewife, safely married, sure of her bed and board, can and does enjoy "the luxury of integrity," of telling the truth and shaming the devil. Mr. Chase gives an interesting instance of such a woman's wholesomely candid reaction against an almost ordinary instance of business sharp practice.

"I recall," he says, "the case of a brilliant young accountant who, shortly after winning his C. P. A., was given an opportunity to make a million dollars, more or less, in a few months' time. All he had to do was to approach certain corporations with an offer to split whatever rebates he might earn for them in their filed income tax returns. His share in turn was to be split with a Government examiner who supplied the names of such corporations as had legitimate claims for rebates in past tax payments.

"He told his mother of the glittering opportunity. 'Jim,' she said, 'you know when I come to wake you in the morning I shake you hard, and you don't stir?' 'Yes,' he said. 'And then I shake you even harder, and you give a little moan?' 'Yes.' 'And finally I shake as hard as I can, and you open one sleepy eye?' 'Yes.' 'I'd hate to come in morning after morning and find you awake.' He turned down the job and has been sleeping soundly ever since."

If "Jim" had been somebody's husband there is many a wife who would, we believe, give him the equivalent of his mother's counsel. A wife, unless she be the out-of-date "yes, dear" variety, can say exactly what she thinks to her husband; indeed, she can say what she thinks ABOUT him, and perhaps does say it too often for his own comfort.

But would a private secretary, to whom her employer confided the details of a bit of sharp business practice—would she, could she afford "the luxury of integrity" to tell her real opinion?

If business is to gain anything from women, the gain will come from the free expression of the women's point of view. If women themselves are to rise, in any considerable number, from subordinates to executives, they must learn to express themselves honestly and independently, to have the courage of their critical convictions—whether men like the "no woman" or not! After all, they can learn to stand her—here's hoping they have to!

Garden Pottery

THE rear garden plot of many apartment dwellers is as colorless and uninteresting as the possessors, or as charming and unusually surprising as persons blessed with personality. Green painted fences or lattices give a setting for vines and growing things. A tall pottery jug here and there, either empty or filled with a plant lends a note of individuality. Such large pieces of pottery may be expensive and very colorful, or of the peasant form and of brown clay, equally as attractive, but cheaper. Charming pieces of peasant ware are to be found in the various nationalized sections of the city—Spanish, Armenian and so on.

If anyone were to go into a typical French household and ask the cook for her salad recipes, she would look slightly bewildered. Recipes? For salad? What a quaint idea!

KAREN HOLLIS

The most definite instructions that a French woman can give you for making salad are to have a big bowl, a clove of garlic, some oil and some mild vinegar and all the greens and vegetables that the market and your purse affords. She should add whims, or imagination.

The American housewife might well adopt the French salad bowl principle. She will want to add lots of chopped ice, for we like our salads well chilled. The best plan is to pack the salad bowl in a larger bowl of ice, and if you want to speed the process of chilling, sprinkle some salt on the ice.

The typical French dinner salad is called "Printaniere" but its ingredients vary from day to day. The greens may be watercress, lettuce, endive, escarole, or even raw spinach, or all of them. The other ingredients may be bits of tomato or cucumber, spiced beets, hard boiled eggs or even a little caviar or some chopped anchovies. Green pepper, sweet red pepper, shredded cabbage or grated raw carrot are all welcome additions to the crisp summer salad. Any number of combinations can be worked out.

Here is a recipe for salad in the French manner which is just a suggestion. Ingredients can be varied to suit individual taste.

SUMMER SALADS

Place a large bowl in a larger bowl of cracked ice, and rub the inside lightly with a clove of garlic. Into this put the ingredients of French dressing—your own favorite recipe, the following:

1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar.
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon celery seed
1-3 cup lemon juice, tarragor or cider vinegar
2-3 cup salad oil

Mix these ingredients well, beating with a fork until the dressing is well blended and thick. Now put in lettuce leaves which have been shredded or separated—about half of a small head. Add a small bunch of watercress which has been well washed, one-half cup of celery cut in short lengths, a shredded green pepper, two scallions chopped, one hard-boiled egg chopped, and one-half cup of spiced beets, diced. Turn over and over in the dressing, handling carefully with a spoon and fork.

It is best to mix such a salad at the table and after allowing a few minutes for thorough chilling, serve on deeply-grooved plates. A little chopped parsley or mint is a piquant addition.

Gay Additions to Midseason Parties

MOONLIGHT WHITE SATIN BROAD ACROSS THE SHOULDERS

THIS is the time of year when an awful urge comes over the party-goer. She must rush to town to find a new dress, or bust.

She has worn those in her wardrobe so many times that she just can't go the same round again without an interruption, or something will die in her good-time psychie.

You know how it is. This nostalgia has come over you summers before this and you know that you might as well give in when the first weariness strikes you now. Take the tonic early as a sort of preventive measure before you are so madly driven that you will buy just anything you happen to see because it is a different color or something like that. It is dress desperation of this sort upon which unsatisfactory wardrobes are built.

There are two courses to take when a quandary like this besets you. One is to pick a dress "off the racks" as the saying goes—something good and cheap that will last only for the remaining weeks of the summer.

The other course—and far the better one—is to find one of the brand-new evening things, the design of which has within the last few weeks arrived from Paris, and to do your choosing so selectively that the dress will carry over through the fall and winter as, we might say, the backbone of your evening array.

It sounds an expensive idea, but really it is far from that, for you will be surprised at the values in this direction that it is possible to find about town just now.

Simplicity of Canton Crepe

THE Canton crepe dress has no season really. It is good all the year round, and those in the new vintage you will find are fascinatingly done. You can wear them now for informal evening parties and all through the winter you will wear them for dinner, for bridge, for the theatre. The fact is you will find yourself choosing this dress many times in spite of newer gowns which you may have, chiefly because it is so easy to wear, not so much make-up required and not so many fixings to be gone through before you are in shape to carry it off.

The lace dress, too, has much in its favor. It is flattering and softening when you are not so young as you used to be. It is cool now and graceful later on, nicely serving the same sort of purpose as the Canton crepe.

ONE OF THE NEW SATIN GOWNS WITH DIAGONAL DESIGNING

If this dress is your choice, take one of Ardance lace with a little jacket and a fluffy, upstanding collar. The model I mean is sketched here and is called "Cocktail," but it's for the pretty type of more mature woman—not for the youthful drinkers. If you are the statuesque sort with slick hair and dignified mien—not this—take one of the others.

LACE EVENING GOWN WITH JACKET AND UPSTANDING COLLAR

New Satin Gowns

SATIN in the off-white shades is lovely for summer, and satin bids fair to be one of the next season's outstanding materials. Therefore, if you get me, that one would be an excellent investment at the present moment.

These evening gowns in satin are simple in line—very long—cut into diagonal and drapery pieces, with a criss-cross wide line across the shoulders. This very line does something kind for that large army of females whose shoulders are narrower than their hips, for it broadens out the slender portion and gives a much more perfect form to the figure as a whole.

Crepe Elizabeth or crepe Roma, those soft, drapery becoming fabrics, are much in the limelight. The dulness of their finish is exceedingly smart, and in these you can go into that Greek line, very full and straight and wrapped around the waist and hips with narrow bands.

Beads and Wraps

I CAN'T emphasize too greatly the importance of turquoise worn with black and with white. They are arranged in two or three strands and fasten with filigree gold clasps. Paste jewelry, too, is still good and does much for these simpler dresses so popular at the moment.

For a wrap, choose satin trimmed with some flattering sort of fur. Later you can have it interlined, and it will be good right along through the coming season.

Cabinet for Knives

JUST as handy as the medicine cabinet set in or against the wall in the bathroom is the small cabinet for the kitchenette designed to contain the carving and paring knives. One shop shows this in an ivory color to harmonize with almost any kitchen color scheme, and the knives have handles painted in a bright color.

Another efficient cabinet used by one kitchenette cook is the ordinary medicine type painted green to blend with the kitchenette color. In this are held all the small bottles and tins containing spice, soda, seasonings, and the like. Such a small cabinet reserves shelf space for pieces of equipment.

The Beauty Shop

By Frances Olivier.

FACES that are smart as well as lovely harmonize with the time, the place and the costume—and, of course, the girl—thanks to the infinite variety of make-up shades and tints and tones in the beauty market to-day.

FRANCES OLIVIER

Your chic summer girl, for instance, will wear for summer sports a facial ensemble something like this: peachy tan powder and a warm natural shade of lipstick; or golden tan powder and a dash of vivid rouge with lipstick to match. But no eye make-up, of course. There's something a bit ridiculous about a mermaid with heavily mascaraed eyes, don't you think.

For afternoons, a warm Rachel shade of powder with a delicate flush of light-toned rouge and matching lipstick makes a most appropriate and pleasing facial picture. Another good scheme is light peach-toned powder, no rouge, and lipstick in a rich natural red.

When evening comes, that skin is loveliest which approaches pearly whiteness. The best pearly-white effects are achieved through the use of a delicate mauve or green powder—an idea which is not novel but very successful, as a rule. With such exotic shades of powder one may rouge or one may not, according to whether the type is ingenue or sophisticate. But it is usually best to be rather generous with a vivid tone of lipstick, under artificial light—whatever one's type of beauty.

As to summer make-up in general, it seems to me that heavy exotic schemes should be steered clear of and that the preference should be given to cool effects. Faces too generously rouged or lipsticked—especially in daytime—are not precisely refreshing sights. Pallor, a faint glow on the skin and a mere accenting of the lips help to compose a more cooling vision and one far better suited to summer frocks and summer scenes.

Of course there is always the old hot weather problem of making make-up stick. One of the most satisfactory solutions to the problem is the use of cooling astringent lotions. These help to eliminate excess oiliness, tighten the pores and leave a good foundation for make-up.

Should you care to manufacture your own astringent lotion, the following recipe is simple and the finished product quite good: Mix together two parts water and one part witch hazel, and if you are interested in getting a specially good effect, let the water be distilled.

While we are on the subject of recipes, have you sent for that very popular leaflet——

ADVICE TO THE GIRLS

OUR own Advice-to-Girls column. Let Miss Emily F. Soothing solve your problems for you, girls. Your canceled stamp refunded if advice is not correct.

Dear Miss Soothing—What is the proper bathing suit for a girl to wear this summer?

ANXIOUS.

Ans. There is no proper suit the girls are wearing this summer. If I were you, dear Anxious, and wanted to be right in style, I would take one of last year's low-back and split-front bathing suits, let the moths get in a little more work and then throw either the upper or lower half away. Or if you wish to make your own bathing suit, cut out the testimony of Earl Carroll's "Vanities," and use that for a pattern. They can't arrest you for being in a suit like that because the beach censors will love it and love is blind.

Dear Miss Soothing—Should an eighteen-year-old girl indulge in cocktails and alcoholic drinks?

VERA T.

Ans.—Certainly, dearie. And what have you been drinking for the last three years?

Dear Miss Soothing—It is safe for a girl of nineteen to ride in a rumble seat?

ELLA M.

Ans.—Ella, dear, if Lindy's month-old baby is safe in the cabin of a monoplane, you are certainly safe in a rumble seat.

Dear Miss Soothing—I have a pretty face, a lovely figure, a pleasant breath, and am free of dandruff. I am introduced to many boys, but they never call the second time. What do you suppose is the matter?

DISTRACTED.

Ans. You have certainly tossed Aunt Soothing a problem this time. The only way I can dope it out is that you are suffering from some complaint the toothpaste, soap and disinfectant manufacturers have not yet discovered. Keep watching the newspaper ads for a description of your affliction. The only other possible theory Aunt Soothing can work out is when your boy friends call, perhaps you step in front of a lighted candle and your future shadow frightens them away.

Dear Miss Soothing—I am only taking a one-week vacation this year. How can I acquire a tan to make me look as if I'd been away all summer?

NELLIE K.

Ans. Follow these directions closely, dearie: Fill a wash boiler with water and place it on a red hot stove. Drop in two pounds of cocoa butter, one-half tablespoon of hydrochloric acid, two cups of walnut stain or varnish, one peck of seaweed and three quarts of broken clam shells. Let the whole thing come to a boil and then step in yourself. About ten minutes of cooking in this boiler will give you a summer's tan or by staying in a half an hour you can make them think you spent last winter in Miami. By boiling in this mixture for more than half an hour you are liable to become a permanent mulatto.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

All through the succeeding days, even while they floundered across the withering sands, they stung each other with words to match the biting particles of dust. There was no undercurrent of good-natured chaffing to their taunts now. A woman had come between them.

Suddenly the Riffs struck, spurting out from the sand dunes like a white flame of bounding horses and yelling men. Still Mac and Griff could snatch a moment from firing at the encircling cordon of darkskinned demons to whiplash each other.

"What are you so nervous about?" sneered Mac, as Griff pumped his rifle rapidly near him. "You're supposed to hit them, you know."

Griff's sunburned face went a shade darker with fury. "Look out I don't hit you!"

"Why don't you do it now? My gun's empty."

Griff turned his attention venomously toward the Riffs, massed for a dashing movement. With a swift swirling drive the tribesmen cut the column of Legionnaires in two. In a lightning flash the stabbing, shooting rebels were crisscrossing through the column fiercely, hewing it into a shambles. Griff and Mac, hacked, benumbed but doggedly thrashing their way through the melee, were staggering among the sand hummocks, when a Riff sharpshooter on a dune sent Mac down with a bullet.

Griff saw Mac collapse on the baking ground. Again adversity wiped out rivalry. Griff stumbled up, bending over his old friend in a fever of anxiety. Mac's eyes opened, with bitter conviction in them.

"So you plugged me behind my back!" he muttered. He slipped back in a faint before Griff could protest. Griff shook him distractedly.

"Mac! You don't think that I—it was a Riff, I tell you!"

Dazedly he shouldered the unconscious Mac and set off to the rear Klotz strode up at the head of a detachment of reserves. The baleful Sergeant ordered Griff to drop his burden and return to the firing line. Griff objected vehemently. Klotz cursed him for a coward, and the harried private hit him, knocking out the Sergeant. Then he picked up the inanimate form of Mac and lurched with him back to safety.

There could be but one result for striking a superior officer—court martial. Death was the usual sentence. In view of Griff's gallantry in saving his fellow soldier, the court commuted the extreme penalty to a lingering death in life—hard labor in the penal settlement at Guiana for ten years.

IV.

The day before Griff set out for Hell's Island he had a last talk with Marie, standing with agonized eyes outside his cell, all the pretty bravado of the dance hall shattered.

"There goes that heaven we were talking about," he said brokenly. "I can't expect you to wait ten years."

"I'm not going to wait, Griff," she said with tense resolution. "I'm going to follow you there."

"It's grand to hear you say it, kid, even if it can't be true. You couldn't stand it there. It's a horrible place. But do one thing for me. Go and see Mac in the hospital, and tell him I didn't shoot him—it was a Riff."

She promised, sobbing, and stumbled off blindly to do this forlorn errand. Mac, however, lay hovering between life and death, and she was not allowed to see him. Wretchedly, with a longing for the departed Griff tearing at her heart, she bided her time till Mac might recover. It was while she was en route to the hospital once more that she encountered Bert, now attired in civilian clothes and towing an ample, dusky belle, who had faith in his honorable intentions of matrimony. He had just married her, Bert explained, and was about to take his presumably blushing bride off to Hell's Island.

BIG FREIGHTER TO DOCK HERE MONDAY

Richmond's luncheon next Monday designed to celebrate the launching of a regular steamship intercoastal service, will be a civic event of importance, according to details of the program announced yesterday through Fred D. Parr of the chamber of commerce. The luncheon will be held aboard the steamer Dorothy Luckenback, which will be tied up at the new Parr-Richmond terminal on the inner harbor to receive a large consignment of canned goods.

Parr will board the vessel in San Francisco in the forenoon and coming to Richmond, arriving along with certain officials of the Luckenback line shortly before noon.

Chamber of commerce leaders, city officials and others will attend a small informal luncheon at 12 o'clock, and there will be a short speaking program dwelling upon the shipping and industrial advantages of Richmond and stressing particularly the significant fact that Richmond is recognized as a port of call by such an outstanding line as the Luckenback company. Attention will be called to the fact that the Dorothy Luckenback is the largest vessel that has so far called at the inner harbor and that this call means the launching of a regular intercoastal service.

The arrival of the Dorothy Luckenback will be more than a social call. The vessel will load 15,000 cases of canned goods from the Filice and Perrelli cannery, part of this years' output from that company's inner harbor plant, the goods to go to north Atlantic ports.

Speakers at the luncheon among others, will include T. M. Carlson, city attorney; W. W. Scott, chairman of the traffic committee of the chamber of commerce and a director of the chamber; Fred D. Parr; P. M. Sanford, president of the chamber; and officials of the Luckenback line.

The canned goods taken by the big carrier will be the first large consignment sent out by water from this year's pack. Walter Harcourt, sales manager of the company, will speak for Filice and Perrelli, telling of the far-flung market of this local product.

Funeral For Mine Victims

BURIAL CEREMONIES were held for 157 miners who perished when an explosion occurred in the shaft of the Wenzesiaus mine at Hausdorf-On-The-Neurode, Germany.

ALL HOPE ABANDONED FOR 42 MEN TRAPPED IN MINE

PRINCETON, B. C., Aug. 15.—UP—Almost every hope for the 42 miners entombed in No. 4 mine of the Colmont Collieries at Blakeburn had been abandoned tonight, as weary rescue crews still toiled at the tons of debris imprisoning their fellow workmen.

It appeared likely that another 24 hours would pass before the remaining 500 feet of dirt and rock could be removed from the passage, closed by a gas explosion Wednesday night. Even then, officials estimated, it will be a week before all bodies are removed to the surface.

So heavily laden with gas was the shaft that even with fans operating the rescue workers could not live without oxygen apparatus. They were laboring in the debris-choked tunnel, 1,500 feet from the entrance.

No Hope

A canary taken to the 1,500 foot level today fell dead in its cage from gas poisoning. With the death of the bird came added gloom.

Already a lone survivor and three bodies have been brought from the mine. There were 46 men in the mine at the time of the blast. The last body recovered was that of Harry Edwards, 26-year-old Canadian. His body, horribly burned, was taken to the morgue, where those of Clifford Alexander Smith and Albert Coles already were held. Apparently Edwards died instantly from the shock of the explosion.

Joe Porchella, the survivor, was able to talk in a hospital today.

Heard Blast

"I heard a thud, saw what was coming and threw myself flat on my face," he said. "A hurricane passed over me and then I crawled on my hands and knees amid showers of dust and gravel.

"Finally I reached water and following it upgrade I knew I was working my way out. Half an hour later I staggered from the tunnel."

The force of the explosion, iaused by black damp, was so strong that a garage 150 feet from the mouth of the tunnel was blown into hundreds of pieces.

Rescue Crews Work

Led by George Murray, superintendent of the mine, rescuers were searching for Josiah Bradbury, Vancouver, who was at work near the place where Edwards' body was found.

The rescue work has not ceased since the explosion, even with the mounting certainty that the 42 men are dead. Grimy workers staggered into the shaft repeatedly after an hour or two of sleep, sometimes only to be driven back choked by gas.

Thirty men have beeen overcome for short periods, but all returned to their posts. At one time 27 men staggered to the surface and collapsed, one by one.

Men Fell

Superintendent Murray has tried to organize shifts, but the men have refused long periods of rest.

"They fell like flies," he said telling of the 27 men overcome. "Three dropped full length on their faces across the tunnel track. Some of them were reeling so badly it seemed that the afterdamp was effecting their brains and limbs at one time."

As the crews struggled in the shaft, grief stricken families of the entombed men haunted the offices of the mine company, begging for news they knew could not be forthcoming.

Forest Fire

By chance, the country surrounding mine No. 4 was under a grey pall of forest fire smoke that added grimness to the tragedy that had dazed the settlement. Hardly anyone has slept during the 48 hours that have passed since the blast shook the mine.

Of the imprisoned men, 18 were married. One leaves seven children. Three sets of brothers were in the mine—F. and J. Stanish, H. and M. Lubarda and two named Smith. One of the Smiths lies dead in the morgue.

Except for Edwards, Dr. D. McCaffrey said that death of the recovered victims was caused by afterdamp. This brought some comfort to relatives who knew that their loved ones, if they are dead, succumbed painlessly as they slowly fell asleep.

Dawn Patrol Wins Action

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—UP—The attempts of two rival companies to prevent First National-Warner Brothers from exhibiting the film "The Dawn Patrol" ended unsuccessfully today.

After viewing all three pictures, Federal Judge George Cosgrove decided that "The Dawn Patrol" did not infringe on the rights of "Hells Angels," produced by the Caddo company, and "Journey's End" produced by Gainsborough, Ltd.

"I find no substantial similarities between the various pictures," the jurist ruled. "And therefore the application for a restraining order is denied."
